

Text shown in the film

(In the beginning?)

Humanization

Far in the future, there are no humans left

Now robots aspire to become more like their creators

(At the end?)

Artistic Enlightenment

Civilization

Conservation

Dialogue

Dorgle (D)__[coming up the hill] "Finally we made it to the MET. This traffic will make me short circuit someday. But now we can go to the human history museum."

Fred (F)__"Yes, finally we are here. I have everything mapped out: First we go to human fine art gallery then the new media art museum and to the Fashion exhibit."

D__"Good thing you got that upgrade, let's go!"

D(Voice over)__"this is a Costume exhibition, it examines how the elements of irony, humor, parody, pastiche, artifice, theatricality, and exaggeration are expressed in fashion."

F__[excited and wonderous] "Do you think a dress like that would look good on me? I would probably be the most stylish human in history."

D__"Now look at this! This hat is the most fascinating piece. It's a hat made of real human hair!"

F__"Why do they make clothing from their own body? That doesn't make any sense...
Anyways, let me try that one on." [WTF scene]

D__"Watch out! ...Oh no, now you ruined it. A part of human hair-history lost forever... ."

F__"Oh no, I didn't mean to! But don't worry I can fix that. I'll be back."

F__"Behold my recreation..."

D__"It doesn't look quite right. It's not made of human hair anymore."

F__"But it's better now, look."

D__"My sources say the creation process worked for month and not just a few seconds... ."